THE MOTHERSHIP DESCENDS... IN THE MOTHERLAND

Motorists traveling on I-35 have reported seeing the Aurora Borealis further south than ever before. Neighbors thought it was a fireworks factory silently exploding. A girls' softball team playing nearby described witnessing a rainbow at night. They should have known that, for the past month or so, there have been tests and programming rehearsals, but The Flaming Lips are finally set to unveil their fantastical U.F.O. light show at, of all places, the Oklahoma City Zoo... We can only speculate as to what the lions, tigers and bears will make of it. But for the humans in attendance, it will indisputably be an evening of orgasmic sensory overload...

The Mothership is designed to transport the band to the stage. Steven, Michael and Klyph will exit from the bottom hatch while Wayne descends from the top enclosed in his, now famous, Space Bubble. Then... The Mothership itself leans back and sprays the audience with an endless orgy of dazzling phosphorescent light beams and patterns as communicative as "Close Encounters of the Third Kind" and as intense as "War of the Worlds".
